THE VERGE OF JORDAN. I stand upon the river's verge, Its waves break at my feet; And can the roar of this dark surge Sound in my ear so sweet!

Higher and higher swells its wave, Nearer the tillows come; And can a dark and lonely grave Outweigh a long-loved home? 'Tis not alone the billows' roar

That falls upon my car; But music from you far-off shere Is waited sweet and clear; For angel harps are tuned to cheer My fultering human faith, And angel tongues are chanting there Triumphal hope in death.

Though dim and faltering grows my sight, It rests not on the grave; It sees a land in glory bright Beyond the darkening wave; The gales that toss its crest of foam Come from that far-off shore,-They whisper of another home Where parting is no more.

The everlasting hills arise, Bright in immortal bloom; The radiance of those sunny skies Illumines e'en the tomba And glorious on those hills of light I see my own abode,--E'en now its turrets are in sight-The city of our God!

Loved faces look upon me now, And well-known voices speak! O! when they left me long ago, I thought my heart would brenk! They becken me to yonder strand, Their hymns of triumph swell, I see my own, my kindred band, Earth, home, and time, larewell!

Welcome, the waves that hear me o'er To gain my home on youder shore I'll beave them joyously, The snowy, blood-wash'd robe I'll wear-The palm of victory!

Welcome, the waves that waft me there, Though dark and cold they be! [New York Observer.

MISCELLANEOUS Execution of Andre.

The following is from the "Editor's Drawer" in Harper's Magazine for August: On "Independence Day" we took steamer for the county of Rockland, determined to pass the Fourth in peace and quietness, and desirous of refreshing our patriotism emidst scenes hallowed by the sacred memories of the "Seventy-six House," where Andre was confined, the place where he was executed, the grave where he was buried, and whence he was exhumed. We conversed with a venerable tady who gave him four beautiful peaches on the morning in which he went forth to die. "He thanked me with a sweet smile," she said; "but somehow or 'nother he didn't seem to have no appetite. He only bit one of 'em. Standing by his grave, we could see across the broad Hudson, the very place where he was arrested by Van Wert, Williams, and Paulding, and the gleaming of the white monument erected to their memory; the place where Washington stood when Andre went forth to die, and the stone house whence he was taken to die upon a gallows.
